TRADE WITH RED RUSSIA.

Until within recent years the United States found sufficient prosperity within itself, through the up-building of its relatively new areas and an enormous interstate trade. For this reason we have not the habit of seeking foreign trade by every possible means, and our government has felt that it can afford to consider the moral side of recognizing red Russia. England, on the other hand, urged by the needs of a small island that must live on foreign trade, is always forehanded in this particular, which explains its government's tolerant attitude toward Russia, a country of vast industrial possibilities in the future. Referring to "the enormous head-start" of the British in dealing with Russia, "the richest ground in the whole European continent," the New York World remarks that "the English bring home the bacon because they never allow themselves to be befuddled by abstractions, nor reject the bacon because it comes from an animal not highly praised in the best circles."

This brings to mind the recent pronouncement of Samuel Gompers, urging the Washington government not to be tempted by such tainted "bacon," not to barter recognition for concessions, and thus depart from its adopted policy toward red Russia; for this would be "a base betrayal of civilization," according to Mr. Gompers, who in part says further:

The Bolshevik propaganda fund in the United States amounts to many millions of dollars. Bribes have been offered out of this fund. Bribes have been offered in places where the American people can ill afford betrayal. The newspaper world, to which we must look for information, is worm-eaten with Bolshevik friends and propagandists and still further eaten into by immature reporters and editors who fall a victim to deception or blandishment. Most important is the disposal of the Bolshevik cause by the group of American Anglo-German bankers who like to call themselves international financiers to dignify and conceal their true function. The most important banker in this group and speaking for this group, born in Germany, as it happens, has issued orders to his associates that all must now work for Soviet recognition.

Evidently what disturbs Gompers most is a threatened rending of the Federation of Labor of which he is president in consequence of Bolshevik burrowings within that organization. He agitatedly declares: "W. Z. Foster, who had no money, went to Moscow and came back and announced that he was building a great secret machine to undermine the American labor movement and turn it over to the Red International, owned by Lenin. He began publication of an expensive magazine and proclaimed 'a thousand secret agents in a thousand communities.'"

The mystery in all this is the source of the funds employed by Red Russia—usually reported to be bankrupt—in such expensive foreign propaganda. Even the seizing of the estates of the crown and the pillaging of the rich Russian estates fail to furnish a sufficient explanation, although the vast loot thus acquired has been ascribed as "acres of diamonds," for the wealth from these sources must be pretty well exhausted by now.

Viscount Astor is not the first half-American member of the British peerage. There was the titled friend of young George Washington, Lord Fairfax, the sixth Baron Fairfax, who actually sat in the House of Lords up to the time, in 1746, when he sold his Yorkshire estates, crossed the Atlantic, and made his home in Virginia, where he inherited 6,000,000 acres from his mother, the heiress of Lord Culpeper, after whom Culpeper county was named. As late as 1908 Albert Kirby Fairfax of Virginia, the present inheritor, presented and was granted his claim to the long vacant seat by the Committee of Privileges of the House of Lords.

A prominent physician in England, after noting an epidemic of "neurasthenia" which has "damped down the brain power of the community" and brought on many "crazes and silly-season outbursts, assigned as a cause the high rate of taxation that is "ruining industry." The "sense of progress, which is vital to the health of a community" being lost, and thought being too painful, people stop thinking and "give way instead to emotion." The New York Times would like to have this same medical authority "diagnose the nerves of a community which, though far less severely taxed, has jizzed four weeks into one—music week, clean-up week, physical culture week and postal improvement week."

W. C. T. U. INSTITUTE HELD AT MILTON

Speakers Recount Victories of the Past And Plan for Others—Americanization And Political Education of Women Considered Important—Miller Praised But Thumbs Down For Wadsworth.

(Official Report.)

The annual institute of the Ulster Co. W. C. T. U. was held in the Presbyterian Church of Milton Wednesday and Thursday, May 3 and 4.

The church was bright with many beautiful spring blossoms. Our journey by auto was made enjoyable by the many signs of awakening nature in the many blossoming trees.

The institute opened with a devotional service conducted by Mrs. Sarah C. Pratt of Highland. Mrs. Martha H. Bell of Milton, president, declared the institute open and appointed Mrs. Edward Scofield to receive subscriptions to various papers. Mrs. William Rhodes of Marlborough was appointed courtesy committee.

Miss Helen C. Taber, president of Milton W. C. T. U., gave delegates and visitors a warm welcome, quoting appropriate lines from Henry Van Dyke.

Mr. Leadbeater said he supposed he should meet us as fellow citizens, since we were formerly superiors, now we were equals through the power of the ballot. He assured us that we had the cooperation of the churches and urged us to not give up in view of our great victories, but ever press on.

Mrs. Rose, corresponding secretary, responded in her usual earnest manner. She said in order to be popular she had been told a speech should be no longer than a woman's skirt—long enough to cover the subject and short enough to be attractive. Mrs. Rose urged us to greater activities in the work and to cooperate with all good organizations and societies working for the best, and said in closing: "Bite off more than you can chew, plan more work than you can do, and do it."

Mrs. Bell spoke of the Volstead act and about the wets trying to withdraw this from our constitution. W. C. T. U. workers, do all in your power to show your stand regarding the Volstead act. Wear your white ribbon and let people know your position and sentiments. Fight on—God is on our side—and let us never forget this. Mrs. Bell said she was so thankful for this bright beautiful day to open our institute, although rain had been predicted for our gathering.

Mrs. Emma C. Payne, corresponding secretary of Dutchess county, was introduced and gave a Bible reading. Mrs. Payne said that we never need be afraid of any work beginning with prayer. Our motto for the morning session being "Prayer moves the hand that moves the world."

Mrs. Payne read from Nehemiah regarding the building of the walls and said she was so glad that she had had a hand in the building of the walls of our W. C. T. U. Our weapons have been prayer and the word of God helped us get these laws and cannot He help us to enforce them? Put your trust in God. His work never fails. Mrs. Payne closed with an earnest prayer.

Two visitors from Orange county gave us greetings and spoke of their pleasure in being here with Ulster county workers as they felt at home.

Mrs. Watt, president of New Paltz, was introduced, also Mrs. Haincourt, former president of New Paltz. Mrs. Jacobs, president of Clintonville, new in the work, was presented.

Mrs. Frances W. Graham, our lecturer, was presented, needing no introduction to an Ulster county audience.

Mrs. Taber of Milton offered non-ide prayer. Miss Lais sang "Beautiful Hour of Noonday."

Miss Fisher, Ulster County Home Bureau Agent, was presented and said she had come to find out about our W. C. T. U. and what it was doing.

The Aaronic benediction was repeated and morning session closed.

A box lunch was partaken of at the noon hour, the ladies of Milton serving coffee.

The afternoon session opened with a prayer service led by Mrs. Helen A. Palmer, president of Clatskill, all joining in singing, "Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing." Mrs. Palmer read the 32nd Psalm and the Rev. George Scofield of Highland led in prayer, several others joining in short prayers, closed with singing "Stand up for Jesus." Minutes of morning session were read by Mrs. Palmer. Mrs. Alice E. Stevens was to have been present to speak upon results of Prohibition but was unable to be present and a letter of regret was read by Mrs. Rose.

The Rev. George Scofield of Highland addressed us on Americanization. He said he thought, as many others, that the work of the W. C. T. U. was by no means finished.

He told of a little boy who was asked by his Sunday school teacher what Lot did when his wife was turned to a pillar of salt. His answer was, "I suppose he looked for a fresh one." So the W. C. T. U. is always looking for fresh problems.

One of the greatest problems today is immigration. What is Americanization? It is organized effort to make 100% Americans. Mr. Scofield spoke of work while he was living in New York city, among young women of foreign birth, spending four nights a week in teaching especially the English language, but other branches of study as well. Let us teach by our example. These 12,000,000 foreigners in our country, in a short time these foreigners can vote and make the laws of our country. It is up to us to make them good citizens.

Help them to contribute something to our country as well as to receive; instead they often work unthinkingly to tear down our laws. Mr. Scofield gave us several questions to think over regarding the Italian, Greek, and many other races coming to our shores. Every citizen should have an obligation to their country besides paying taxes. Give these foreigners a chance. Let us welcome them in a Christian spirit of kindness and brotherly love.

Mr. Scofield gave an instance of a young foreigner who hated America. He had never been invited to attend a church service, to enter an American home, or had never attended an American school. He said all that was wanted of him was his strength in hard work. Let us do our full share. As Abraham Lincoln said, "Right makes might." Make the golden rule the rule for all men. Practice the true spirit of brotherly love. Mr. Scofield was heartily applauded and commended for his enlightening address on this subject.

Miss Greenwald of New York city gave an address upon the "Immigrant Women on the Farm." Miss Greenwald is a Jewess, although born in America, yet her people think it strange that she was unfamiliar with their Yiddish language. She has started a community center in a little town of Sullivan county, where different subjects are taught and through their get-together-center much good is accomplished. In another town, Ellenville, a parent-teacher association was organized and has grown to large numbers and has grown in power for much good, and many possibilities for service.

Miss Greenwald was a most interesting speaker as she urged us to help in the work among these people in Ulster and Sullivan counties. Miss Florence Hallock rendered a fine piano selection, being heartily applauded, gave an encore, both numbers being much enjoyed.

The importance of Y. P. B. in charge of Mrs. J. Wells Weaver, Secretary of Ulster county, was the next part of the program. Miss Passberg rendered a vocal number, "Somebody's Boy."

Miss Erma Schwarz, President of Shawangunk Y. P. B., gave a report of their work, telling of different branches of work being taken up at their meetings. Mrs. Samuel Taber of Clintonville gave a reading, "We have always been provided for and we always shall be."

Mrs. Frances W. Graham spoke of our responsibility for the election of dry congressmen. Mrs. Graham said she listened to Miss Greenwald and realized that we must educate these voters and influence them for the right. Are we making ourselves intelligent citizens? We must study up on citizenship, so that we can answer questions intelligently.

We had one chance to put in a good intelligent member of Congress. Mrs. Hoole, Jimmie is alright, but the best part of him is underground—like a potato. What he has, he got from his father and grandfather. Mrs. Graham said, if we are to hold what we've got, we must do our best. Go to the polls and do your Christian duty, for it is a duty we owe. Mrs. Graham recommended the reading of two books—"From Alien to Citizen" and "Introducing America."

It is a mighty important matter to elect good congressmen and senators, men who shall represent our principles. Several questions were asked and answered to the best of Mrs. Graham's ability. She urged all to enroll so as to be able to vote at the primaries.

She commended Governor Miller for enforcing the laws—in supporting our constitution. An offering was taken amounting to $4.18 and institute adjourned.

The Wednesday evening session opened with a song service led by Mrs. Edward Young. We sang—"The World is Going Dry," "Some Glad Day," "Cheer for the Jubilee" and "America." The Rev. Mr. Leadbeater led the devotional service, reading the Crusade Psalm, as a scripture lesson and led in an earnest prayer. Mrs. Frances Graham, former vice president of New York county, gave the address of the evening.

Mrs. Graham said, "Our work will never be finished till Old John Barleycorn is buried so deep that he will never be resurrected. Our biggest fight is ahead of us. It is one thing to secure a law, another to enforce it. We have done a wonderful thing in two years' time. We have begun our second wind in the race. The 18th Amendment is firmly fixed as well as any other part of our constitution. In the early seventies Henry Blair offered the 1st Amendment of prohibition and although it failed live to see the day and again. He died here to see the day of its fulfillment. Two-thirds of Congress and three-fourths of states had to approve the amendment before it could be ratified. The 18th and 19th Amendments are two of the wonders of this generation. For a long time we had only three prohibitory states, and they were ridiculed. Two factors still to fight—greed of men, who were in the liquor business and the appetites of those who must have the drink. We constantly read of people caught who are trying to evade the law."

Things are improving in every community. We have made an outlaw of the liquor traffic. No one can talk against the constitution and be a good citizen. Mrs. Graham sang, "The Amendment is There To Stay."

Some things people say against prohibition—a million men would be thrown out of a job. Unprecedented use of drugs and opiates.

Farmers would lose millions of dollars because no one would buy grains or fruits.

Jails would be filled with prisoners.

All these dire calamities have never happened.

Patriotic side appeals to Mrs. Graham. We want a clean, stainless flag. Mrs. Graham sang, "Hats Off to the Flag," also "When the Flag Goes By," which were very much enjoyed. Lady Astor said, "One woman's vote may seem a small thing, but citizenship is a great thing. Let reverence of law be the political religion of this nation," said from Ulster County W. C. T. U. at the executive session held at noon.

Miss Florence Woolsey pleased all with a fine piano selection. Mrs. Graham presented the subject, "Team Work." The number three finds a large place in many instances in the Bible history, 3 parts in the tabernacle, 3 persons in Trinity, 3 on Mount of transfiguration, 3 lights in heaven. There are 3 fundamentals in W. C. T. U.—prohibition of temperance, purity and justice.

Mrs. Graham suggested several pamphlets to use in this team work. Campaign is well planned as you can see from the leaflets. Have your teams have a thorough knowledge of the work they undertake.

Mrs. Graham sang from the Union Signal, "Read the Signal." Mrs. Graham said if you will live up to the advice of the W. C. T. U., we may accomplish much before our jubilee year. Qualify yourselves to answer all these questions about what is to be done with one million dollars fund, about the work in all lands. Pass on the good work.

Mrs. Payne bade all good-bye, expressing her pleasure in being present and invited Ulster to attend the Dutchess Institute June 1st at Salt Point.

Mrs. Bell expressed regret at the absence of our county W. C. T. U. secretary, Mrs. Conine, as our need is to gain our young people to train them up in our work. Mrs. Payne offered non-ide prayer and the morning session closed with singing "Work for Enforcement." The Rev. Mr. Leadbeater pronounced the benediction.

The ladies of Milton served a delicious chicken dinner to all the visitors and delegates.

Thursday afternoon the session opened with a prayer service conducted by Mrs. Leadbeater. "Come Thou Almighty King" was sung and the 91st Psalm was read. Mrs. Leadbeater offered prayer. Minutes of morning session were read and approved. Minutes of the executive session were adopted. Mrs. J. D. Rose was appointed to hold a civic meeting in each local union before election.

Resolutions committee submitted the following resolutions:

The need for Christian principles to be incorporated in government was never so imperative as it is today and we urge all women to exercise their rights as citizens to help elect competent, intelligent, trustworthy officials and since there is organized effort to the 18th amendment let us support for office only those who will publicly pledge themselves to the enforcement of prohibition laws and the Volstead Act.

Knowing that the enemies of temperance continue as ever alert and watchful, and rejoice with a great joy if there is a thinning in the temperance ranks, we, as faithful soldiers enlisted in the cause of righteousness and humanity must put forth our best efforts to defeat the foe. Therefore,

Resolved, that we push with renewed vigor and earnestness our membership campaign and consecrate ourselves anew to winning members for our local unions, thus increasing our strength and the power of our State and National W. C. T. U.

Resolved, that the Ulster Co. W. C. T. U. express its disapproval of all organized and individual efforts to break down the effectiveness of the laws of the federal and state governments through a spirit of lawlessness. We believe that treason to the nation consists not only in abetting its enemies, in bombing its buildings and in insulting its foes, but in ridiculing and belittling its enacted laws.

Since all enduring and worthwhile reform rests upon Christianity as its basis,

Resolved, that we be true to our chosen name, Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and give due prominence to evangelistic effort and by diligent Bible study, with prayer, keep ourselves fit to wield the sword of the spirit with efficiency in our holy warfare against the evils which blight society and ruin the individual.

These resolutions were adopted as read.

The following resolution of thanks was adopted by a rising vote:

Resolved, that we extend our sincere appreciation and hearty thanks to the women of the Milton local union for their generous hospitality, to the Presbyterian Church for the use of the church, to the speakers, to the women who so beautifully decorated the church, to those who delighted us with music, and to all who contributed to the success of the institute.

Mrs. Edgar M. Clark was to present the subject "Citizenship in Practice," but being unable to be present, prepared a paper on the topic, which was read by Mrs. J. Wells Weaver.

Mrs. Edward Young offered a proposition that the executive committee be empowered to secure a musical director for our institutes and conventions and Mrs. George Brown of Highland was duly elected director.

A Big Gas Range for Small Kitchens

In addition to having all the wonderful features of the closed top this big complete SMOOTHTOP Gas Range has more actual cooking capacity than most big four burner open top ranges and it is only 24 1/2 inches wide.

Think of it. The top will cook five good size vessels at one time with only two gas burners lighted because all the heat is retained and made to work for you.

It is easy to clean because no food reaches and clogs the burners. No corners. All smooth surfaces.

It is easy to work at because it is high enough to stand up to without tiresome back-bending.

JUDGE HASBROUCK TALKS ON NOTES

Tells Gilbert F. Kennedy, Attorney in Daniel J. Murphy Suit, That People Should Pay Their Notes.

Pointed remarks by Judge Hasbrouck on people who don't pay their bills and business notes, with Daniel J. Murphy as the topic of discussion, helped to enliven the regular special term of the Supreme court at the court house on Saturday, when Gilbert F. Kennedy as attorney for Mr. Murphy applied to open a judgment taken against Mr. Murphy by default at the last trial term of the Supreme court.

The judgment against Mr. Murphy was in favor of the J. J. Newman Lumber Company, Inc., and judgment in its favor was granted by Justice Rosch of Monticello, who presided at the March term. The action was on a note given by Mr. Murphy in payment of lumber he had bought. Although Mr. Murphy has a most meritorious defense, said Mr. Kennedy, he had made a somewhat technical defense, having alleged, among other things that the lumber company had not complied with the provisions of the corporation law and was not entitled to do business in New York state.

On March 30, said Mr. Kennedy, he had explained to Judge Rosch in the presence of County Attorney John W. Eckert, attorney for the lumber company, that he would be unable to appear in court the following day to try the case because just then he was engaged in business of far greater magnitude which was nothing less than adjustment of a claim for $300,000 arising over the loss of barges owned by Mr. Murphy through burning. Among the important questions arising in connection with the case was one whether the United States government was going to pay $70,000 or whether the government was going to get that amount. Anyway, said Mr. Kennedy, he had arranged with Judge Rosch to have the case held open until the following day, March 31, on the understanding that he was to be allowed to file affidavits and a memorandum. Mr. Kennedy said he had arraigned with Chris J. Flanagan to represent him in court the following day and had at once proceeded to New York where he was engaged in Mr. Murphy's business affairs until the following Saturday when on his return to Kingston he had discovered that judgment had been taken by default and that Mr. Flanagan had not appeared for him in court.

That is untrue, said Mr. Eckert with asperity.

Just cut out your statements that things I say are untrue, responded Mr. Kennedy.

Well, the record will show whether Mr. Flanagan was in court, retorted Mr. Eckert, and on that question I would like to have the privilege of calling Mr. Geroldsek, the clerk of the court. Anyway, said Mr. Kennedy, Mr. Murphy had a perfectly good counterclaim against the lumber company which he desired to have tried.

Why doesn't he sue them for it? inquired Judge Hasbrouck.

There is ample opportunity to adjudicate that matter in connection with this little suit, on the note, said Mr. Kennedy.

What's the amount involved? asked Judge Hasbrouck.

Only about $2,800, said Mr. Kennedy. With interest and costs it brings it up to about $2,900.

What was the note given for? asked Judge Hasbrouck.

Some lumber, said Mr. Kennedy.

It wasn't the first note he gave for lumber, volunteered Mr. Eckert.

Why doesn't he pay his bills, Judge Hasbrouck asked.

He has a perfectly good defense, explained Mr. Kennedy. He has a counterclaim and he contends the plaintiff had not complied with the law.

But these seem like technical defense, said Judge Hasbrouck. People should pay their bills. This was evidently a business man's note and it should have been paid. People nowadays pay their notes and if they have a valid claim they sue on it. If he wants to interpose technical defenses, he should pay his bills and then sue later.

Decision was reserved, with Mr. Kennedy having the right to file an additional affidavit to which Mr. Eckert may reply.

JUMPING MICE

"We are members of the Jumping Mice family," said Miss Joan Jumping Mouse.

"Instead of people saying they always jump when they see a mouse they should hear of the mice who are known as the Jumping Mice. It is our family name."

"It is indeed," said Julia Jumping Mouse.

"We're relatives, I believe, of the Jerboa family of Europe," said Miss Joan Jumping Mouse. "There aren't many of us in this country."

"We have curious ways, I believe. They don't seem curious to us because they are our ways, but folks say they are curious—curious to them, no doubt, because they are not their ways."

"That is always the way it is. People think others are curious who aren't like them."

"Now, we think that people are curious, and people think that Jumping Mice are curious and strange and so there it is."

"They think it is strange that we like to be about always at night like the owls."

"We like to live in great meadows, or near the prairies, or at the outskirts of huge forests. We're not in the least sociable. People needn't be afraid we'd jump at them as they jump at our cousins, the House Family, because we won't go near them, and they won't see us unless they come a-looking for us and seeking us where they are pretty sure to find us, in some of the sorts of places I've mentioned."

"We wear reddish yellow suits and we have thin bodies and very thin tails—that is one tall piece. We have long hind legs and feet which help us to jump. We can carry our food in our pouches. We have two of these either side of our mouths, and they come in very nice and handy as marketing baskets."

"I don't see how people can bother to shop and carry their food under their arms when they might have nice pouches by their mouths and store it away that way, and then put it into their mouths as they wanted to eat it."

"Our long tails help us so much when we jump and we can make great long jumps—magnificent jumps!"

"I've had a fine winter's nap, have you?"

"Yes," said Miss Julia Jumping Mouse. "I have. My nest was so nice and warm, just a little under the ground. I had a beautiful lining of grass for it. I also had a storehouse built off my nest which held delicious goodies such as berries and nuts."

"I've heard," said Miss Joan Jumping Mouse, "that my mother jumped and made a fine escape once when danger was near when I was but a little tot with my sisters and brothers just as small too. She was such a good mother to us.

"There were seven in our family; a fine number!"

"It is the cold of the winter that I don't like. If it were warm I wouldn't cuddle up in a little ball and wind myself all up to keep the cold out."

"Neither would I," said Miss Julia Jumping Mouse. "The meadow mice, our cousins, are different. They act quite differently from the way we do."

"But I must be getting back home to the nest now," said Miss Julia Jumping Mouse. "Such a nice home as we have. Very pleasant rooms and fine food stored away. We expect to eat a great deal this year as the custom always has been with the Jumping Mice."

"It makes sleep so pleasant when one has eaten a great deal!"

"You're right, young lady," said Miss Joan Jumping Mouse. "Well, I must be jumping home too. Good-by, my dear, so glad to have had a little chat."

"Good-by, my dear," said Miss Julia Jumping Mouse and jumped off toward home.

"I'll jump to my house," sang Miss Joan Jumping Mouse. And straightway she did. And in the long grasses hid:

GAS BUGGIES—Big events in little men's lives

THEM DAYS IS GONE FOREVER

Tackle This on Your Trumpet.

Take what God gives, O heart of mine. And build your house of happiness; For aye some have been given more. But many have been given less.

The treasure lying at your feet, Whose value you but faintly guess; Another builder, looking on, Would barter heaven to possess.

WAYS WITH SUET

With a pound of nice sweet suet one may prepare several good dishes, among them are:

Old-Fashioned Hash.—Brown one large onion well chopped in one-half cupful of suet, then add boiling water to cover and six or eight medium-sized potatoes which have been sliced. Stew the mixture for an hour, seasoning with salt and pepper.

Potatoes With Dressing.—Try out one cupful of suet in a baking pan and place peeled potatoes in one end to bake. After a half-hour add the following dressing: Place a quart of bread crumbs in a crock and pour over this a small quantity of soup stock; if water is used add butter, then add one egg, a small onion chopped, salt and pepper to season. Bake the dressing with potatoes. When done remove the remaining fat and serve the potatoes and dressing with a green salad.

Noodles.—Place three-quarters of a cupful of ground suet in a kettle, try out and when the bits are brown remove them. Add three pints of water, salt and pepper and cook noodles in the kettle tightly covered for fifteen minutes.

Vegetable Soup.—To one cupful of suet add one large onion sliced and browned, and two quarts of soup broth prepared from beef bones, two large tomatoes or the equivalent in canned tomatoes, two carrots sliced, a large tablespoonful of rice, a sprig of parsley and a small turnip with a little cabbage if desired. Season well and simmer an hour. This is a delicious and nourishing soup which will take the place of a main dish.

Rice With Suet.—Boil a cupful of rice until tender in salted water; barley may be used in place of the rice if preferred; when cooked reserve one quart of the water with the rice and add one cupful of chopped suet. Season with onion, salt and pepper and cook one-half hour.

Rest the Eyes.

It's a funny thing, but people never give their eyes a thought unless they have trouble with them. A person couldn't run or walk all day long without giving his legs a rest. A woman couldn't sew all day long without stopping for a few moments to rest her hands. And still people will work their eyes all day without closing them for an instant.

Wife's Privilege to Purchase Food. That it is the wife's privilege, in all cases of society, to lay out the money for food, was the dictum laid down by a London (England) magistrate in deciding a matrimonial dispute, which arose because the husband, dissatisfied with his meals, decided to purchase the food himself.

CITY TREASURER'S NOTICE.

SPECIAL ASSESSMENT.
Notice is hereby given that I have received the warrant for collection of the special assessment of 75 per cent of the expenses incurred in the construction of a sanitary sewer in Hudson Avenue commencing at a point five hundred, sixty-eight feet from Prince Street and extending for a distance of the said one hundred, sixty-eight feet to a connection with the existing sewer in Prince Street, also beginning at a point one hundred, forty-eight feet from Foxhall Avenue and extending for a distance of the said one hundred, forty-eight feet to a connection with the existing sewer in Foxhall Avenue in the City of Kingston.

The same has been left with me for collection at my office in the City Hall, in and out of the City, for thirty days from the date of this notice, the said assessment may be paid without additional fees or charge, and that for the twenty succeeding days 2 per centum additional will be collected.

If any of the said special assessments shall remain unpaid at the time last mentioned, I shall give a written or printed notice to the person or persons against whom such assessment stands charged, requiring them to pay such unpaid assessment to me at my office within thirty days thereafter, with 5 per centum fees thereon, and one dollar for such notice as required by the City Charter.

Dated at the Treasurer's office, City of Kingston, N. Y., May 4th, 1922.

ber of applications still out which must be filed with the secretary not later than Friday at noon. Those who desire to take the examination must be at the city hall that evening promptly at 7 o'clock.

Two Classes Promoted—Monthly Meeting Tuesday.

The Rondout Presbyterian Bible
School on Sunday, held special recognition services in honor of two classes promoted from the primary department to the main school. The class of boys will be in charge of Tom Rowland, and the class of girls in charge of Mrs. William Gage.

At the close of the school session,
the Rev. John Lyons of Pekin, China, exhibited and explained a number of very beautiful and interesting curios, some showing the skill in weaving and embroidery of the Chinese and others their mechanical ingenuity.

Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock the teachers, officers and adult scholars of the school will meet at the manse on Wurtz street. After the business session Dr. Baragwanath, of St.
James's M. E. Church, will give a presentation of John Masefield's book, "Hounds of Heaven and Hell."

Mrs. Carrie N. Hubbard, wife of William B. Hubbard, Boston manufacturer, is alleged to have shot her husband to death following a quarrel. Mrs. Hubbard, it is charged by police, quarreled with her husband when he objected to her keeping company with another man whom she is said to have brought into her home.

Golf.

Golf is a game of pool played in a cave pasture instead of on a table. It consists in placing a white pill on an ant hill and then seeing how far one can knock said pill with a club.
After having driven the pill a mile, more or less, the next hour is spent in trying to find it. When found, it is dropped in a hole and then the performance is repeated 17 times with 17 or so more pills.—Standard Player

THE COTTAGE GARDENER

FLOWERS AND VINES BEAUTIFY THE COTTAGE

Flowers and Climbing Green Afford an Air of Refinement and Pride in the Home. The Variety of Easily Grown Flowers is Unlimited and Majority Are Excellent Producers.

TO HAVE POSIES ADORN THE HOME

Variety in Garden Annuals Will Assure Choice Blossoms Throughout Season.

MANY WILL SEED THEMSELVES

When Once Established Numerous Splendid Flowers Will Grow Year After Year—Endless Combinations Are Possible.

Sufficient variety in planting the garden annuals will assure cut flowers all summer, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture. There are so many different garden flowers that are easy to raise, that almost endless combinations may be selected.

One would surely want an abundance of blue cornflowers, sometimes called "bachelor's buttons," "ragged sailor," "ragged robin," or a variety of other names. When placed in water after cutting, the flowers increase in size. The seeds of these annuals should be sown in the fall or in the spring from the time the ground is fit to work until the last of May in the North and the last of June in the South. They may be started earlier under glass. The young plants should be thinned to 4 to 6 inches apart. They thrive well on all moderately rich garden soils. When once established they will usually reseed themselves year after year.

Scabiosa, often called mourning bride, pin-cushion flower, and sweet scabiosa, is an easily grown old-fashioned half-hardy annual that is very attractive and satisfactory both for cutting and for borders and beds. The flowers, which vary from white through rose, crimson and blue to almost black, are borne on long stems and keep a long time either on the plant or when cut. The seed should be sown in the open ground after danger from hard frost is past and the plants will bloom in about 12 weeks. There are also hardy perennial kinds.

The Popular Zinnia.
The home garden is not complete without zinnias, sometimes called "youth-and-old-age." They are easily grown from seed sown in the open ground. When sown as soon as the ground is fit to work, the plants will bloom abundantly and continuously through the entire season. Of late great improvements have been wrought both in the color and form of the flower. Their colors are white, yellow, orange, pink, rose and scarlet. During the month of August zinnias are at their best.

To secure large flowers and a profusion of bloom, the plants must be given ample room for full development as well as an abundant supply of food. Strong rich soils suit them. If the seeds are sown in a dwelling house or in a hotbed and the young plants are pricked out once or twice before being placed in their permanent situations more satisfactory results will be secured than from out-door sown seeds, unless equal care in thinning or transplanting is given. The plants can be used for groups, beds, borders, garden lines and summer hedges. Their average height is 2½ feet, ranging from 2 to 3 feet.

There are two forms of "baby's breath" of which the perennial is sometimes considered best, but the annual type may be used with good effect for combining with other cut flowers. It is sown in the open ground as soon as freezing weather is past.

For Fall Blossoms.

The China aster is certainly one of the most satisfactory of the annual flowering plants. Its habit of growth adapts the China aster to close planting for cut bloom, for window boxes and also for bedding. It should not be confused with the attractive native, hardy perennial asters.

Plants from seed sown in the open ground in May and supplied sufficient moisture bloom abundantly in September and October, when the flowers are seen at their best. For July and August, blooms, the seeds should be sown in March or April. When frost occurs during this season the planting will need to be done in a coldframe, a spent hotbed or in pots or boxes in a living room. Cover the seed about half an inch deep with rich light soil, and when the plants have three or four leaves transfer them to thumb pots or to other boxes, setting the plants about two inches apart.

After all danger of frost is past transplant the plants so treated to their permanent home, where they should stand about eighteen inches apart each way in well-prepared beds. Fresh manure or manure used in too large quantities sometimes proves injurious to them. Only thoroughly composted manure mixed with the soil is safe for these plants. Small quantities of air-slaked lime or of fresh wood ashes stirred into the surface of the beds are beneficial. When given plenty of water and rich, fine soil China asters can be grown into beautiful pot plants.

In the galliardias, or blincket flowers, are found both annual and perennial plants of easiest culture, offering a wide selection of varieties and a profusion of bloom over a long period. The blooming period begins early and continues late in the autumn. These are plants well adapted to mixed borders and very satisfactory as cut flowers. The stems are of good length, carrying the orange and crimson flowers well, while the cut flowers keep fresh for a long time when placed in water. The perennial types are often preferred.

Plants Need Sun and Air.
The annual galliardias are all propagated readily from seeds sown where they are to grow soon after freezing weather is past, although they can be started under glass and be transplanted to their permanent location as soon as killing frosts have passed. In either case, the blooming plants should not stand closer together than 10 to 12 inches. They grow and bloom best when fully exposed to sun and air and when planted on a fertile but light and well-drained soil.

Among various pleasing flowers one may choose from stock, calceolarias, candytuft, alysium, phlox, drummondii, petunias, ageratum, verbenas, dahlias and gladioli. Each gardener will have personal preferences easy to satisfy with the long list suitable for cutting when in bloom.

PROGRESS of the IGORROTES

Baseball Has Been One of the Important Factors in Bringing Civilization to the Igorrotes.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

The decision of the Igorrotes, one of the few Philippine tribes which may now be called barbarous, no longer to eat dogs, emphasizes the march of civilization in the out-of-the-way portions of the islands, and gives promise that soon it will be difficult to find the primitive customs that a decade ago marked some of the islands' inhabitants.

There are perhaps 100,000 of the various Igorrotes—those of Benguet, Lepanto, Amburayan and Bontoc. Only the latter have been head-hunters in recent decades. The Igorrotes are a robust and vigorous people. Both men and women are, as a rule, short, heavily built and strongly muscled, with broad, spreading feet. Their hair is perfectly straight. Many of them have large and beautiful eyes. As a rule the men wear their hair short, although some individuals, especially in Lepanto, allow it to grow to a considerable length.

A few years ago the usual dress of the men was the clout, supplemented, when the means of the individual permitted, with a cotton blanket. They were, however, glad to wear flannel shirts and coats of khaki or blue army cloth when obtainable. They also took early and kindly to hats. Indeed, many of them wore hats of their own make.

In view of the scanty costume of the men, it was a surprising fact that the women were ordinarily careful to keep their bodies fully covered, although when working about the house, weeding rice fields, or washing clothes, they frequently omitted upper garments. Wealthy women, even in the early days of American control, often wore several superimposed skirts and nearly all bound towels about their heads.

Neither sex has any very elaborate ornaments. Some of the men adorn themselves with large bands of beads or wire and with ear ornaments of brass or silver. They often tattoo the backs of their hands.

In Benguet a number of wealthy women possess beaten plates of thin gold, which they wear between their lips and front teeth on special occasions, thus completely closing their mouths. Doubtless many American men would rejoice if ornaments of this character were to become fashionable in the United States. When they are worn the male sex monopolizes the conversation.

Are Industrious Agriculturists.

The Igorrotes are now peaceful, industrious agriculturists. They live chiefly on yams, but raise some tobacco and considerable quantities of rice, much of which is grown on terraces. The most wonderful of these terraces are constructed by the Bontoc Igorrotes. Irish potatoes and coffee, introduced years ago by the Spaniards, are raised for sale. Pigs and chickens are kept in considerable numbers, but are, as a rule, eaten only on ceremonial occasions. Dogs have been a highly appreciated article of diet and were brought in large numbers to Baguio from the lowlands for sale. On Sunday mornings the Baguio dog market presented a unique spectacle.

The Benguet Igorrotes raise good horses in considerable numbers, and both men and women ride with skill, differing absolutely in this respect from the Ifugaos. Bontoc Igorrotes and Kalingas, who neither keep horses nor know how to use them.

In the vicinity of Kabayan the Benguet Igorrotes build good houses, which have floors and sides of boards and are even possessed of windows, a number of individuals have constructed up-to-date dwellings with gabled iron roofs, furnished with chairs, tables, beds and American stoves.

The houses are usually grouped in small villages, but sometimes stand singly in very isolated places. The Benguet and Lepanto Igorrotes have mined gold for centuries and are the only native miners in the Philippines. Ancient gold ornaments of unknown origin are still to be found among them.

Like the other tribes of northern Luzon, they are a music-loving people. They sing very pleasantly and sometimes use bamboo flutes to accompany their songs. Their dance music is produced by gongs and long-barreled wooden drums with skin heads. The tone of such a drum is varied by in-gering the head and by pressing the long barrel with the bare arm. The sounds produced by these instruments are supplemented by striking a bit of steel upon a stone. When a dance is in progress a man with the steel and stone and two gong players march about with the dancers, while the drum players, usually two in number, squat close by.

A number of schools have been established for these people. Girls are taught to weave good cloth. Young men have been educated sufficiently to serve successfully as secretaries and treasurers of their towns.

The daily wage has risen steadily since the American occupation and opportunity to work can practically always be had by those who wish for it. The people of this tribe have prospered under American rule and today live in better houses, are better fed, wear better clothes and enjoy better health than ever before.

The Head-Hunting Tribe.

The Bontoc Igorrotes are a strong, warlike, head-hunting tribe numbering approximately 70,000. They are almost limited to the very mountainous region constituting the subprovince of Bontoc, but a very few are to be found in the subprovince of Kalinga. For the most part their territory is separated from that of neighboring tribes by mountain barriers.

They are straight-haired people, probably of Malayan origin. Both men and women are splendidly developed and are considered by many observers physically superior to any other Philippine tribe except the Kalingas. While on the average they are more muscular than the latter people, they are at the same time more heavily not to say clumsily built. Both men and women were unclothed, but there is a noticeable improvement in this regard.

The dress of the men is usually a clout, although this is sometimes replaced by a mere apron. Blankets are comparatively rare. The men have long hair, hanging across the forehead and rolled into a knot behind, where it is confined by a janjany, more or less highly ornamented, rattan cap. Many of them make huge holes in the lobes of their ears, into which they thrust wooden plugs, bamboo rings and various other objects which they consider ornamental. Occasional individuals wear huge metal pendants in their ears.

The women use ear ornaments similar to those of the men, and in addition wear in their hair and about their necks more or less elaborate strings of beads, bone tusks, dog teeth, and ornamental seeds.

When there was occasion to swim or ford streams or to work in the water in rice fields, both men and women discarded their garments without any apparent hesitation, although women who had occasion to work long in the fields usually, but by no means always, extemporized skirts of leaves.

The typical house of the Bontoc Igorrotes has a grass roof which overhangs, but does not meet, low board sides. There is a storeroom in the roof. The ground space is divided between a sleeping-box at the end opposite the entrance, a stall in which food is prepared, another stall in which it is cooked, and a larger space utilized as may be convenient.

The houses are grouped in large villages, which are often readily accessible. The people of this tribe depended on large numbers of fighting men for protection rather than on inaccessibility.

The Bontoc Igorrotes were once inveterate head-hunters, and were formerly constantly at war not only with neighboring tribes, but among themselves. Fortunately, head-hunting has now ceased throughout their territory. They are very fond of music and dancing, in which they indulge on all possible occasions. The only instruments used are gongs, one of which is carried and played by each dancer throughout the performance.

The Bontoc Igorrotes, like the Ifugaos and the Benguet Igorrotes, are spirit worshippers. Their religious practices consist chiefly in efforts to propitiate the anitos, or spirits of the dead, who are believed to have power for good and evil.

They are monogamous, but have a curious system of trial marriage. When they marry they usually continue to live together to a ripe old age. Divorce is, however, permitted under certain circumstances.

EXCHANGE VALUES

"A penny for your thoughts, fair lady," Jack Leonard peered over the top of his newspaper at Celie, who was toying with her coffee spoon.

"Oh, Jack," she burst out, "I must have looked such a frump last night in that old white crepe! I know I spoiled every chance you had."

"Aw, Celie, don't talk that way," Jack's voice was filled with tender reproach. "My chances were pretty slim, anyway, and as for your spilling them—I guess not. I didn't care about the job on my own account at all," he lied valiantly, "but I don't want my wife always to be obliged to wear made-over gowns."

"As if it mattered!" It was Celie's turn to be consoling now. "But—oh, Jack, wasn't Mrs. Fairfield just dear last night? I love those little gray curls over her ears. She's like the grandmothers one reads about, but seldom sees."

"Yes, she was great," Jack nodded absently. "But, do you know, Fairfield never mentioned that manager-ship. I thought sure he wanted to discuss it when he asked us up for dinner. Of course Manly has been on the road longer than I was. I suppose he's better entitled to it." He arose and went into the hall.

"Jack, dear," Celie's voice followed him, "don't you think it would be a rather nice thing to do to send Mrs. Fairfield some flowers today? I'd like her to know that we appreciated last night."

Jack groaned inwardly as he thought of the lone $10 bill reposing in his bill fold. But he acquiesced cheerfully enough. "To be sure, I'll send them when I go out for lunch."

At lunch time, remembering his promise to Celie, he went into a nearby florist's. A cluster of roses, so yellow that they were almost orange, met his eye. Celie's favorites! Just the thing.

On his way out, a glass case filled with wood anemones entwined with sprays of green arrested his gaze. By Jove!

"Only 50 cents a bunch," The clerk was at his elbow. "Just in from the country this morning."

Jack did not hesitate. "Send a bunch to this address," giving him Celie's address.

He did not think of the flowers again until he was nearing home that night. He wondered if Celie would be pleased. Celie was.

No sooner had he entered the door than her arms were around his neck in a bear-like hug. "Oh, Jack, you darling! To think you remembered my birthday when I'd forgotten it myself. And those lovely, lovely roses!"

Roses! Jack gasped. It couldn't be! But, yes, there they were in a crystal bowl. What would the Fairfields think of that miserable little bunch of wild flowers?

In her ecstasy Celie did not notice his consternation, and with effort on Jack's part they spent a gay evening as befitted the occasion.

Mr. Fairfield nodded cheerfully as he passed Jack's desk in the outer office next morning. "Come, inside in about half an hour, will you?"

The hands of the office clock pointed to 9:30 as Jack laggingly complied with the request.

"Well, Leonard, I congratulate you," Mr. Fairfield rose and grasped Jack's hand. "Sit down now and we'll talk the thing over a bit."

In a daze Jack did as he was bid. "Now, young man," Mr. Fairfield's voice took on a confidential tone. "I'm going to be frank with you. Of course you know that I've been considering you and Manly both for general manager of the sales department. I don't mind telling you that the odds were mostly in Manly's favor. You are a bit young, you know, and somewhat lacking in experience. However—" a whimsical expression passed over his face—"I've had orders from higher up. Boy, that little bunch of wood anemones turned the trick. I found Bessie crying over them when I got home last night—there was a suspicious moisture in his own eyes—you couldn't know, but they were her favorite flower when we—oh, never mind."

"The upshot of it is this: She insists that a man of such keen perceptions and thoughtfulness is just the man for that vacant position. And another thing. Your wife made a great hit with her. Shake again, boy, I congratulate you! And, now, supposing you run home and tell Mrs. Leonard the good news. And, say, you needn't report for your new job until next Monday."

In a daze Jack left the office. "The exchange value of anemones and yellow roses," he was thinking, "is just about equal in this case. I should say."

A Liberal Education.
Next to the study of language the study of good literature should be named. To read good books—the best books to read them, not always with that etymological thoroughness which Mr. Ruskin enjoins, but slowly and carefully, getting the full force of every sentence, and the full significance and beauty of every figure and illustration—this is a great aid in mastering the art of expression. In such reading one becomes familiar with the action of the strongest and brightest minds; with the choicest and most telling forms of utterance; and this familiarity is itself a liberal education.—Washington Gladden.

Fishes' Heads for Headaches.

It is the custom in China to pray for holy medicine. A patient must pay a visit to the temple and take from the altar a tube containing number of incense sticks. He passes the tube over the incense several times until one of the sticks falls out. This is picked up and the number on it is read. A corresponding slip containing a prescription is then handed to him. As a treatment for apoplexy, serpens, liver is surely unique, but this is prescribed by the best Chinese doctors. Pigs feet and deer's tendons are prescribed for weak legs, and fishes' heads for headache and dizziness. MARKS HELP TO IDENTIFY AUTOS

Looking Devices Are Good Protection Against Depredations of Meddlesome Boys.

FEW CARS ARE WELL LOCKED

Professional Thief Discards License Plates, Changes Car and Engine Numbers and Obliterates Every Mark.

It is believed that at least one automobile out of every dozen manufactured and sold is stolen. How many stolen machines are ever recovered by their rightful owners, is another question.

Good locking devices or thief signals are not to be despised. They are a sure protection against depredations by meddlesome boys, and will cause the automobile thief so much trouble that he will look for a car that is easier to take away. Where several cars are parked this will not be hard to find. Comparatively few cars are left well locked, and many stand without being locked at all. Owners sometimes forget to take the switchkey with them, leaving it in the switch lock.

Work of Professional.
Should a professional automobile thief get your car, he will take good care that you will not recognize it should you see it again. You know it now chiefly by its license plates, car and engine numbers, and a few scratches, dents and slight peculiarities.

He discards the license plates, changes the engine and car numbers and obliterates every mark by which you might identify your car. Caution is his middle name. He likes to tear down several cars of the same make and reassemble them so that no two of their principal parts will be found in any one car together. He has looked everything over with great care to see whether your initials are hidden under a washer, or whether there are pick-punch holes anywhere concealed. Lost you identify some scratch or dent he may use new fenders and repaint the car.

Way to Secure Car.
If you could make a decisive identification of a body, frame, engine, gear case, rear axle housing or front axle, you would stand the best kind of a chance to take that car away from a crowd of claimants, even if your markings could be found on but one of these parts.

How near can we come to a system of invisible markings, unlikely of chance duplication, and readily discoverable by the owner or someone authorized by him? There is safety in numbers. Several markings on each part make it less likely that all can be obliterated.

Note of Secret Marks.
Take, for an example, the following memorandum of a secret mark: "7% in horizontally to the left of center of the right engine suspension bolt, scrape off the paint and find a drilled hole filled with lead."

If you have several such marks, carefully recorded, on different parts of the frame, your identification will become more positive, as it is highly improbable that two or more of these marks would be accidentally duplicated by some other person.

Many other methods of marking the car will suggest themselves to the inventive owner. It must be remembered, however, that secret identification marks are worthless unless they are carefully and exactly recorded and a record of them preserved.—Henry R. Thayer in Popular Science Monthly.

TIRE PATCH IS FIRST AID TREATMENT ONLY

Permanent Repair Should Follow Soon as Possible.

Reckless Driving Over Glass, Into Curbs and Holes and Against Rocks is Largely Responsible for Loss of Mileage.

Trying to make a blowout patch do the job of a permanent repair is a good way to ruin tires. The tire patch is a first-aid treatment to meet emergencies, but as soon after the blowout as possible it should be removed and a permanent repair made. Unless this is done, the casing will have one weak spot that is constantly growing weaker.

A blowout patch does not unite itself with the rubber stock in a tire. It remains separate, and, during the warping that takes place while the tire is in motion, chafes against the ragged edges of the cut in the casing. In time the hole reaches such proportions that it becomes difficult if not impossible to repair.

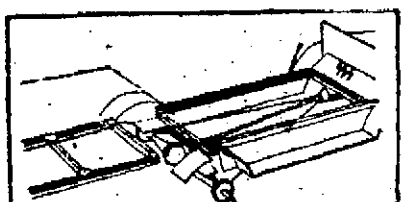

When a tread cut is responsible for the blowout, the result is usually a clean-cut hole. Severe bruises ordinarily produce a ragged hole. Where the fabric is revealed or torn apart, fabric separation is often the cause.

The standard-make tires offered the motorist today will not blow out in their prime if they are treated with care. Driving over glass, into curbs, into road holes and against rocks is usually responsible for loss of proper mileage. The safest way is to have your tires inspected regularly by a tire man. He can eradicate the cause of future trouble before it is too late.

LUKE FOUGHT HIS OWN WAR

Young Lieutenant's Devotion Lives on in Sister Now Cheering Ex-Soldiers in Hospitals.

Frank Luke's devotion to duty lives on in the character of his sister. The American ace who so gallantly gave his life one day in the early autumn of 1918 found the same joy in service to his country that Anna Marie Luke now finds in serving ex-soldiers in the hospitals of Phoenix, Ariz. Her songs are known wherever veterans are quartered, and her popularity at the American Legion post, which bears her brother's name, is often remarked.

Further honor was recently paid the memory of Lieutenant Luke when the Italian Croce di Guerra was awarded him posthumously. The cross, with a certificate of award signed by General Diaz, is now in possession of the late officer's family, together with a Congressional Medal of Honor, a Distinguished Service Cross with oak leaf cluster, and several minor decorations.

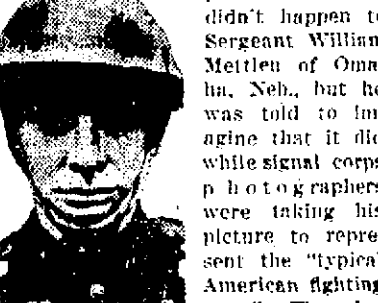

The lieutenant was one of the best known and most picturesque flyers in any army. Working for the most part without orders, he practically fought his own war. He would load up with bombs, fly far back into German territory, take on any odds that happened to fall to him, and work destruction wherever he went. Known by reputation to every man in the A. E. F., he represented all that was romantic in modern warfare. He fell in action with enemy airmen near Murvaux, after a forced landing of his plane. He had previously shot down three German balloons while under terrific fire from ground batteries.

THE TYPICAL YANK FIGHTER

Sergeant William Mettlen, Omaha, Stacks Up With All the Required Dimensions.

How would you look if a sneaker back in the States had taken your job and married your girl? No, that didn't happen to Sergeant William Mettlen of Omaha, Neb., but he was told to imagine that it did while signal corps photographers were taking his picture to represent the "typical American fighting man."

The photographers, on an official mission from the government, scratched their heads a long while before their thought of anything that would make him look fierce enough.

If you want to be "typical" you will have to stack up as follows: Height, 5 feet 10½ inches; weight, 160 pounds; hair, light brown, and eyes, blue. Mettlen's other specifications are that he enlisted when nineteen years old, while still a freshman at Nebraska university; that he was cited four times for bravery; that he is as active in the American Legion now as he was in the Sixteenth infantry then, and that, in addition to being a typical American, he is Scotch-Irish.

LEGION WINS COURT BATTLES

Damages Allowed National Organization in First Litigation Instituted—Two Editors Indicted.

From the first court action which it ever instituted to protect its name, the American Legion emerged victorious. Judgment by default and damages were awarded the Legion in the suit against Francis H. Shoemaker of Omaha, Neb., who was quoted as saying that the Legion was "subsidized by big interests" and was "opposed to organized labor."

Shoemaker, who is an alleged radical worker, made a speech last December in Omaha, during the course of which he is said to have referred to the Legion as "an organization of trained murderers opposed to organized labor." Suit was brought by the Legion commander in Nebraska on the ground that the statements were "wicked, false and malicious" and for the purpose of "stopping such contemptible lies and showing union labor that we resent charges of being opposed to them."

The Legion has also secured indictments against two editors of the Illinois Staats Zeitung, a German-language newspaper, for an editorial which appeared in their paper libeling ex-service men.

The long-tailed queues and honorable garb of the Celestials, the dangerous dives and the ornate joss-houses are pointed out to sight-seers aboard New York's rubber-neck busses running through Chinatown. But a few persons realize that "China in America" is represented as often by clean-cut young men as by long-haired ascetics.

Harry Wong Ti, who served in the Seventy-seventh division, is one of China's most active sons in New York. One of three American-born Chinese ex-service men of the John Purroy Mitchell post of the American Legion, Ti is busily occupied in raising funds for a lean-to at the veterans' mountain camp in the Adirondacks. He also serves on the executive committee of his post.

In a recent round-up of slackers in Chinatown several Chinese ex-soldiers assisted the Legion "detectives" in the work of tracking their quarry, and in many other ways Chinese service men have proved to the Legion, by their progressiveness and their initiative, how worthy they are as patriotic citizens.

The vista of peace which American Legionnaires saw in their mind's eye through this portal gave them the name of their "Peace Arch post" at Blaine. At the time of the unveiling of the monument the Legion took an active part in the ceremonies, and represented with their uniformed ranks the strengthening of the bonds of brotherly feeling with Canada which came as a result of the recent alliance against a common enemy for common ideals.

On the architrave of the monument are carved the words, "Children of a Common Mother," to perpetuate the idea of the triangular relationship between England and her two American offsprings.

Carrying On With the American Legion

A plea that all students at Nebraska university join the Legion "for the honor of the institution and the perpetuity of our country" has been made by Chancellor Avery.

The "Society of Military and Naval Officers of the World War" has come into existence in New York state. Plans are under way to make it a nationwide organization, with hereditary membership.

Ex-service men who ask for aid at Racine, Wis., receive no hearing unless they hold a letter of endorsement from the American Legion. "Impostors in bought uniforms" have brought on the move.

Indux of Japanese on newly opened farm land is opposed by the American Legion of central Oregon. George Shima, so-called Japanese potato king, has shares in a company which owns 17,000 acres of this land.

"To aid and to aid quickly" is the object of the Washington State association in New York City, which is checking up on Washington state soldiers in need. The Legion is asking other states to "do likewise."

"Wait two years until the gas gets working good" was no idle jest on the part of the Germans. Almost one-third of the 30,000 hospital cases in America are suffering from mental disorders, the Legion reports.

Hundreds of prominent Presbyterian ministers from all parts of the United States will attend the annual convention of the Presbyterian General Assembly, which opens in Des Moines May 18. In this group are shown six committeemen and officials who will attend. Dr. J. A. Marquis is general secretary of the Board of Home Missions. Dr. John Willis Baer, Pasadena (Cal.) banker, is the first layman moderator of the assembly. Dr. W. S. Holt is associate general secretary of the Board of Ministerial Relief and Sustenance. Dr. Charles Scanlon is general secretary of the Board on Temperance and Moral Welfare. Dr. W. H. Foukes is general secretary of the New Era Movement, and B. Carter Millikin is his associate.

Carl Schallbruch and his family of twelve have arrived in America from Germany and will establish a penknife factory at Newark, N. J. Each member of the family is an expert in the manufacture of high-grade penknives, and for many years have disposed of their output to American trade. Schallbruch brought with him machinery for the establishment of his factory.
